Von lepommier Fantasy/SF, Romance, suspense - in that order. Nicely balanced mixture. Also, good writing, although the pace sometimes picks up and the reader has to absorb a lot of information at once. I do sympathize with the poor admiral, who is equally amazed whenever exposed to some fundamental news that will shake his core beliefs. But I get ahead of the plot. That is basically: Woman from a very developed race meets guy (the admiral) from a not so developed race that the same woman has helped some 300+ years prior to develop as the race and culture was threatened by some other very developed race with extinction or something as bad. There was a fight and she was hit, transported through time to pop out said 300+ years later only to find out they made her a goddess. No time to recover, she has to step right up to save them all over again and to fall in love with the very handsome and not overly timid admiral. I particularly liked how they interacted with each other and that he always forgave her for not telling the truth. Nice guy! They are well matched - two compassionate, funny, loving, intelligent folks, who have to save their people. And they will. Have fun reading - I had!

Von Ein Kunde Captain Gillaine Davr regained consciousness in a strange sick bay. The last thing she could recall was having combat with the Fav'lhir in Riftspace. She soon learned that she and her sentient crystal-ship named Simon had been catapulted forward in time 342 years. After absorbing that shocking blow more quickly follow. History believed Gillie had died more than 300 years before, sacrificing herself, in that battle to save the Khalaran race. She had been immortalized as the Goddess Kiasidira! Now she risks harming the Khalaran culture with the truth about her pub-crawling ways. The truth must stay here secret. Admiral Rynan "Mack" Makarian is a follower of the Lady Kiasidira. He believes that the Lady sacrificed herself in order to save his people. He also believes that the mysterious freighter captain who's turned up on his station is the most beautiful woman he's ever seen. But is she hiding a secret? Suddenly, a long-time enemy attacks, again. Can Gillie help Mack stop the invasion without revealing her identity, and losing the man she loves?

Kurzbeschreibung Raheiran Special Forces captain Gillaine Davr has just woken up in some unknown space way station, wondering where the last three hundred years have gone. The last thing she remembers is her ship being attacked. Now it seems that while she was time-traveling, she was ordained a goddess. Gillaine's only hope of survival rests with dangerously seductive Admiral Mack Makarian, who suspects her of being a smuggler or worse. But he can't begin to imagine the full extent of it. For Gillaine is now Lady Kiasidira, holy icon to countless believers, including Macka man who inspires feelings in her that are far from saintly feelings she knows are mutual. But when their flirtation is interrupted by a treacherous enemy from the past, Gillaine's secret and secret desires could destroy them both.
