Von Anabelle Bryant : Defying The Earl (Regency Charms, Book 1) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Defying The Earl (Regency Charms, Book 1):

KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Enjoyable readVon Kindle JunkieA theme I had not yet come across well-told and well-written. The Earl of Dashwood's brother Jasper has discreetly offered his service to break unwanted matches. Dashwood's hired by Lord

Rigby to prevent his son from making a match with the daughter of his political opponent. As luck would have it, Lady Rigby asks Lady Wilhemina to help ensure the very same match, her help to be generously rewarded. There were only two points which irritated me a bit, but did not overly detract from the story: it is briefly mentioned that Lady Wilhelmina's father was an earl, but no mention of his heir, who would have been responsible for the care of Wilhelmina and her sister. It seemed a bit too much when Wilhemina endangers her life to rescue a cat.

KurzbeschreibungGameMatchmaker Wilhelmina Montgomery helps cupid's arrow find its mark in the drawing rooms of the Ton, effortlessly pairing even the most unlikely couples for a discreet fee. Perhaps not an appropriate pursuit for a lady but with an ailing sister to care for, its Whimsy's only hope at securing their future. Set Meanwhile, penniless aristocrat Valerian St. David, Earl of Dashwood is society's favourite matchbreaker; assisting those who want to escape engagement without being sued for breach of promise. Cynical, yes but with no intention of falling in love himself, Valerian considers himself ideally suited to the role. And match! When Whimsy discovers that Valerian has set out to break the very engagement she has been painstakingly arranging, she refuses to allow this mysterious saboteur have his way. Yet she didn't expect to find the handsome Earl so distractingly alluring. And suddenly, it seems that the Ton's last two loneliest hearts are in danger of meeting their match in the most inopportune of places.
